One app. Every cask, every bottle.

1 Get the Decant Index app

Everything lives in one place, on your phone. Buy, sell and manage your fine wine and whisky portfolio wherever you are: checking prices, browsing new listings, or managing your collection. The app is the best way to keep track of every Bid, Ask and trade as it happens.

Don't have the app yet? Point your phone's camera at the QR code for your device, or tap the store name to go straight there. Already using it? You're all set.

2 Start making Bids

Decant Index is an interactive marketplace. Prices aren't fixed. Bids are made, negotiated and accepted every day, and the Order Book makes every Bid count.

HOW THE ORDER BOOK WORKS

When you Bid on a stock item, for example a 1999 Dalmore ex-Sherry cask, your Bid is automatically presented to every owner of that same stock item across the marketplace. One offer, every seller, at once.

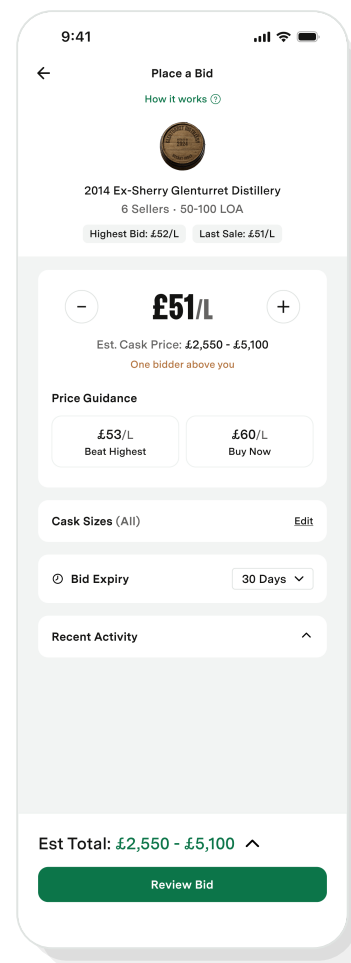

50/50

If there are 50 owners of a stock item, all 50 receive your Bid. That means a far greater chance of securing the asset, and deeper liquidity for everyone.

Yes.

Bids below the asking price get accepted. Sellers regularly take a fair offer rather than wait for their full Ask.

Try it. Set your price per litre, review the price guidance, choose a Bid expiry, and tap Review Bid. Serious Bids get taken seriously.

When you're ready, you can sell.

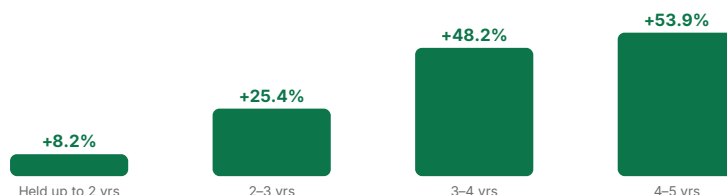

3 List your collection with an Ask 3+ YEAR HOLDERS

We understand circumstances change. That's why clients who have held stock for more than three years can set an Ask, the price you're willing to sell for, creating liquidity before the recommended hold period is complete. Buyers can purchase immediately at your Ask, or submit a Bid for you to consider, and Ask Guidance helps you position your listing well.

A WORD ON TIMING

Selling ahead of your recommended hold period means your total return may not be what you expected. As always, whisky is a long-term hold: the longer you hold, the greater the return. The three-year threshold protects that: it discourages short-term flipping, supports price stability, and keeps the marketplace strong for collectors and long-term investors.

REALISED CLIENT EXITS, BY HOLD DURATION

Figures reflect completed, realised sales by Decant Index clients to date, not any individual holding. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future returns. The value of a cask can go down as well as up, and you may get back less than you invested.
