WHY THIS CASK IS UNUSUAL AT THIS PRICE POINT

The name. A closed Glasgow grain distillery, the whisky inside Johnnie Walker Blue. Port Dundas was a historic grain distillery in Glasgow, for many years one of the largest grain producers in Scotland and a key component of some of the most famous blended whiskies in the world, including Johnnie Walker.

The maturation. Approximately 18 years are already done, so part of the hold is behind you.

The entry economics. At 421 bottles per cask the spirit cost is £20.94 per 70cl bottle before tax, the level you enter at.

02 / PRICING & OUTLOOK

Pricing & Outlook

What you pay against what the bottles sell for, and where the value can go.

This cask comes to the platform at £65 per litre of alcohol, a total of approximately £8,814. That works out to 421 bottles at a spirit cost of £20.94 per 70cl bottle before tax. The bar below sets that figure against comparable Port Dundas bottlings selling at retail today, which reach £1,740 per bottle.

£20.94 SPIRIT COST · vs £1,740 RETAIL BOTTLE

The bottles behind that comparison, live at retail today:

BOTTLE (INDEPENDENT)	RETAILER	LIVE RETAIL
Port Dundas entry comparable	The Whisky Exchange	£292.00
Port Dundas mid comparable	Master of Malt	£1,740.00

Comparables run from £292 to £1,740 per bottle. That spread is the room a cask has to grow into over a longer hold.

The outlook

Not a forecast. The bottle reference simply shows the ceiling that long holds of this distillery move toward, value at exit depends on demand and condition.

04 / PLATFORM PRECEDENT

Platform Precedent

Clients have already bought and exited this exact product on the platform.

This is not a new, untested line. 1 client / 1 cask of this exact product have already completed a full buy-and-exit cycle on Decant Index. Across those exits the average realised return was 25.0% over an average hold of 36 months.

Reading the data

These figures are realised, not modelled: they reflect the difference between what clients paid and what they received on exit for this same product. They are historic and specific to those casks, and do not guarantee the same outcome for stock bought today.

Annual return is the average total return annualised over the average hold.

Recent-vintage casks tend to show shorter holds and lower totals simply because they have had less time to mature, so read the figures together.

Past performance does not guarantee future returns. Short holding periods can be impacted by storage and insurance costs and price volatility. Each cask has a recommended minimum holding period.

05 / THE DISTILLERY

The Distillery

A closed Glasgow grain distillery, the whisky inside Johnnie Walker Blue.

Port Dundas was a historic grain distillery in Glasgow, for many years one of the largest grain producers in Scotland and a key component of some of the most famous blended whiskies in the world, including Johnnie Walker. The distillery was closed and demolished, which means no new Port Dundas spirit will ever be made again. Every cask that exists is part of a finite, dwindling pool.

Grain whisky from closed distilleries has become one of the most quietly collectable corners of the category, prized for its soft, sweet, vanilla-rich character and for the simple fact that supply can only ever shrink. Port Dundas in particular carries the cachet of its role in premium blends, the kind of provenance that resonates strongly with buyers.

The cask offered here is a ex-bourbon fill, approximately 18 years matured, held in HMRC-bonded storage at Alloa in Scotland. It comes to the platform at £65 per litre of alcohol, roughly £8,814 per cask, a spirit cost of £20.94 per 70cl bottle before tax.

1

It can never be made again

Port Dundas is closed and demolished. The supply of its whisky is fixed and can only fall as casks are bottled, the clearest scarcity story in the whole category.

2

A blue-chip blend pedigree

As a grain component in famous blends including Johnnie Walker, Port Dundas carries provenance that buyers immediately understand and value.

3

Closed-distillery appeal

Whisky from silent distilleries occupies a special place with collectors, where rarity and the finite nature of the stock drive sustained demand.
